NAÏM ABOU-JAOUDE

Chief Executive Officer
New York Life Investment
Management LLC

Naïm Abou-Jaoudé is the Chief Executive Officer of New York Life Investment Management (NYLIM), a multi-boutique third party asset management business under New York Life.

Previously, Naïm was the CEO of Candriam from 2007 to 2023, one of NYLIM's affiliates. During his tenure as CEO, he guided the company through its 2014 acquisition by New York Life and subsequent rebranding to Candriam. He successfully strengthened its position as a leader in sustainable investing, doubling its assets under management through geographic expansion across Europe, Asia, and the U.S. In addition, under Naïm's leadership, Candriam further diversified its position through a number of acquisitions and partnerships in the European alternative space, including Kartesia and Tristan Capital Partners. With over 30 years of experience in asset management, Naïm has held various leadership roles, including Alternative Fund Manager at Credit Agricole and UBS Asset Management, and Chief Investment Officer and CEO of Dexia Asset Management, Candriam's predecessor. Between June 2021 and June 2023, Naïm was President of the European Fund and Asset Management Association (EFAMA), representing the €27 trillion European investment management industry.

Since 2015, Naïm has chaired New York Life Investment Management International, responsible for expanding the company's activities outside the U.S., and serves on NYLIM's Management Committee.

Naïm graduated from the Institute of Political Studies in Paris and earned a Master's in Economics and Finance from Université Paris II - Panthéon.
